Subject: Re: Monthly Giant Mine SSP July 2013--Hundreds of Ravens Roosting at Giant Mine

Hi Kevin,

I spoke to site and a biologist. Site has bird deterrence measures are in place. Site has photo's going back years of Ravens' flocking on the roaster after the breeding season is complete. This will include juveniles fledge this year. It is common in most corvids. Ravens like to use the highest feature to flock. The behaviour is not tied to feeding, although there may be incidental feeding during this period, it is low risk.

Adrian

Thanks Adrian. Having driven past the site on the evening of August 9, I took the attached photo that shows literally hundreds of ravens roosting on all the buildings.

Is there an explanation for this behaviour?

Are all the bird deterrence measures turned off at the end of the work day?

Are the birds safe after having roosted on the buildings?
