Hi Brett,

Thanks for the phone call and providing us this opportunity to get our permit application back into the system. In regard to this agreement with YKDFN, I do not fully understand the need as I, as are most exploration companies, am willing to communicate and provide them copies of reports. And we have never stopped them or confronted them onsite. I'm also confused as to who they represent – all First Nations? As far as the Archaeological study, now I am also confused. The Board stated the permit would be subject to a study. Can you tell me the scope of this as the way Todd talked, it would only be specific to new areas we plan to drill and work? Would this mean there are different requirements? And I have difficulty as to why an agreement is so secret – I don't understand why as we have always been open to everything. My email of December 22, 2011 essentially outlines a number of issues and concerns. Any agreement we sign will be respected and implemented. It would be difficult and onerous to do so in the present draft terms of agreement. When I met with Todd, he was amicable and we will continue to discuss and determine what is essential to an agreement. Possibly I am over reacting and some issues may not be as onerous as they appear. If that's the case, then we need to tone down the agreement. It may be as simple as changing some wording.

Here's the "LOG" to December 28, 2011.

Regards, Ellen

To our knowledge, the project area for land use permit application W2011C0004 has never been inspected by an archaeologist. The PWNHC is concerned that unrecorded archaeological sites may be at risk of impact from the proposed exploration activities. Recommendation: We recommend that the proponent contract an archaeologist to conduct an archaeological impact assessment (AIA) of their project area, including all of the kimberlite targets located on land and any other areas of anticipated ground disturbance. This work must be completed next summer. While exploration activities scheduled for this winter may proceed as planned, we recommend that the archaeologist inspect any areas of ground disturbance resulting from this work as part of the AIA." I am writing to ask you to please provide a list of archaeological assessment contractors that have done work in the north in the past so

Tuesday Nov 15, 2011	Todd Slack Yellowknives Dene	geoscience forum - meeting with Todd Slack	Todd and I discussed back and forth as to understand what the issues were and why the need for a separate agreement - He also explained the YKDFN did not represent all the First Nations group and stated he was the contact person. I stated how disappointed we were with the blocking at the 11th hour and he gave me the various and multiple excuses how this happened. I said I had no problem hiring FN people as long as they were qualified and able to do the job and that I did not discriminate. Also explained we were a very small exploration company and much of our work was done by people already proven due to the cost and risk of failure within our short timespan of knowledge of previous work. He did not see this as a problem but did request that in the event we could hire them, would we please look at it. I agreed I would review their resource list. Archeaology study was discussed and he stated that we only needed to conduct studies on areas we'd be working and disturbing and that the archive information was available and he requested reporting direct to them the results. Regarding special visits to the property by their people at our cost...

			I was not very supportive as it would be rare that we'd have a plane coming in and returning that was not loaded with supplies and/or our people, empty or available planes were rare and be a high cost to us. I said I didn't mind meeting with the group once a year to provide them an opportunity to discuss and question our planned activities as long as it could be arranged that it wasn't a special cost trip to us and he said he'd keep the costs down on their part if possible. Said to look at their draft agreement and if revised within reason, he would present it for approval.

This includes the deletion/amendment of Schedule E. I have not removed them from the template because I don't want to do it poorly as I run back to the forum. There may be other sections that connect (and it would change the numbering system) or reference this area - which might increase confusion rather than simplifying it. 2) Schedule C would be refined to the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a. November 15 - 17, 2011	geoscience forum Ellen Clements/Stephanie Poole	discussions person to person	Had a chance meeting with Stephanie Poole - she came to discuss with Don Vigue, the lack of attendees and exploration people at the Geoscience Forum convention and ask if he was disappointed and down in sales etc etc. I was sitting at the booth, Don's answer along the lines that they were there to continue support for those still working in the NWT. The take on Stephane's comments were that it was the fault of the exploration community themselves and they should work together to advertise the NWT as a good place to work and then could raise the money... these not her exact words but I understood this as what she meant. My comments - she had no idea and could not understand the reason responsible for drop of exploration dollars in the NWT>>>>> I gave her my card but I didn't get one of hers. (My perception - these are frustrating times... and exploration companies are caught in the middle with little understanding.)

I briefly spoke with the Chief yesterday and he confirmed that the ExA is the preferred method for engagement and consultation on this file. As we talked about at Geoscience, there's a lot of pluses from our perspective and we think that this is the best way forward. I don't want to belabour the matter – you probably had enough chatter from me at the forum, but if there's any questions or concerns, please don't hesitate to ask. I just want to remind you, that if you do not wish to use the Exploration Agreement mechanism, the duty to consult remains and must be met through other uncertain means of the Crown. For further clarity, consultation must occur directly with YKDFN leadership...staff (ie. me) are not an appropriate representative (INAC is already well aware of this). I think that at this point, YKDFN will await your response and work from there. Cheers, Todd <small>Research and Regulatory Specialist, Land and Environment Yellowknives Dene First Nation</small>

You can look at the attached and present it if acceptable and I can sign it right away if approved. Can we scan the document after signing and initialing each page please. Let me know if you need further detail. My take on all this is that it is key important that I copy to you all reporting, progress and activity on the Monument the same as I send to Land Use. You are available to work with us regarding available and applicable contractors and provide us information on a work in progress study of archaeological information. If this is approved and you sign off on our land use application and it is approved, there is a good chance we have time to plan and implement our spring (April 2012) ice target drilling. I have limited time to plan for this as we need to get equipment from the property to Yellowknife for maintenance and repairs and return it plus supplies via the winter road and road camp and qualified people are fast becoming unavailable. Hope we can make this can happen. Your availability for meetings and working with us is greatly appreciated. The other question I have is regarding who (contacts) beside yourself I should be sending emails to in order that I don't offend or miss

At the Monument property, although New Nadina is the operator, we have two Joint Venture partners – we require all to be in agreement prior to getting back to Todd with the final Engagement agreement. We are addressing it but I apologize that due to availability and response of the partners it has not yet happened. We are hoping it will be end of next week – will this cause a problem? The timeline identified in the WLWB's direction provided on September 20, 2011 was primarily for the benefit of New Nadina, recognizing that work is planned for winter/spring 2012. As you know, New Nadina's storage authorization is due to expire January 31, 2012 and, prior to that date, the WLWB will need sufficient time to review the engagement activities that have been conducted and any agreement or engagement plan that is in place. Thanks for getting back to me on this. First off, I'm confused as to why you decided to rewrite and rearrange the agreement. This will require a careful examination between the template that I sent and what you've returned (Do you have a track changes version available instead of just the black line? It may make it easier to compare). Off the top of my head I can tell that some of the clauses are there, but I'm going to have to go through it and complete a clause by clause concordance table, contrasting the wording and language. This is a significant departure from the template that I sent and it may require legal review on our end depending on the degree of change to the clauses in particular. I'll try and complete this today and get back to you this week (I'm in hearings tomorrow and Thursday). Can I ask why you chose to re-write the agreement rather than making changes to the template that I sent? As we begin this process, I'd just like to remind you that the ExA is a confidential document – the Board need only know that we are seeking to try and dispense with the consultative duty.

I've gone over this and tried to bring it back in conformity with our template, while leaving in most of the changes. There are only two items where I think I've changed the content - the Good Neighbour clause, where we left your definition but removed the 6 month time period and I've added details surrounding the archaeology so that there's additional clarity. Let me know what you think about all this and then return a blackline version to me. If its agreeable I'll take it to the Chiefs following our Christmas Break. Cheers, happy holidays.

The changes have been quite severe. As I told you before I have partners and directors that I am obliged to review with and seek approval prior to committing the company. We are a small company, and the Monument property is primarily still in exploration and thus far we have not found a 'barn burner' although we do have encouraging results. We have not drilled all the known targets – the balance being mainly water targets. The past cost to work at this property is very high compared to other areas we explore and committing ourselves to even higher costs is a serious undertaking. I wish you would reconsider on some the costly items and possibly 'stage' the agreement with 'down the road' items in the event we have indications of production. Diamond exploration is high risk and very few explorationists are fortunate enough to make discoveries comparable to the current mines in NWT. The Monument property has been worked intermittently since 1992 and many millions of dollars have been spent in the NWT. Our supplies are all purchased locally and we never discriminated to qualified employees or contractors or expeditors etc. The WLWB, if you read the review, had already made stipulations regarding the Archaeological study and we would be obligated to comply with them first. There is too much confusion here and too onerous and just this agreement with you is going to be costly. It has to go back to the lawyer as my directors will not approve without a lawyer signing off on it. The HR requirements you request are more geared to a larger company... I will continue to work on this best I can. I wish you and yours a very happy holiday and we'll talk in the new year. Under the permitting process, I feel I am obligated to keep the WLWB advised of our discussions, therefore Brett is being copied. Regards, Ellen
